MARKET UPDATE

Economic data releases in August suggested that the global economy might be past the peak rate of growth, but it is still running hot, and concerns around inflationary pressures continued to build. In the US the headline consumer price index (CPI) was 5.4% year over year and, whilst UK CPI softened slightly in August to 2.0% year on year, there is an expectation that we will see the levels rise again in the coming months. Employment data has been strong in both economies and this, in all likelihood, will start to lead to a degree of wage inflation in the coming months. Despite these above target inflation figures, the Federal Reserve, as confirmed in Chairman Jerome Powell's Jackson Hole speech, is content with the progress made on inflation, which it still believes will be transitory.
The UK's FTSE 250 led market returns in August, with an improvement in sentiment for domestic stocks on the back of further lifting of covid restrictions, whilst the FTSE 100 lagged the other major indices.
