MARKET UPDATE

Global equities delivered significant gains in Q4 2023, helped by strength in the US market finishing nearly 12% up. Mega-cap tech stocks led the rally in the US market, returning to the levels they hit in H1. However, the rally began to broaden out late in the quarter with European shares posting healthy returns thanks to optimism that interest rates in the Eurozone will be cut in 2024. UK equities were flat, and China continued to experience a range of challenges including high government debt and weakness in its property market. In December, Moody's downgraded China's credit outlook to negative.

Economic data weakened in Q4, particularly in Europe. There is often a delay between interest rate increases and economic weakness, so there could be more weakness to come.

Indeed, inflation continued to fall in most advance economies and as a result, the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank, and the Bank of England all held interest rates steady. The Fed signalled that it may cut rates in 2024.
